The Light-filled Snow Scene

Probably stemming from a childhood love of playing in the snow, Barbara has developed a passion for this subject in her paintings. This passion went to the extent of convincing her family to move cross country five years ago from the Southeast to a much snowier region. In this presentation, she'll share with you some particulars about why snow makes such a paintable subject, and some tips on how she goes about capturing a dramatic sense of light in the wintry landscape. Barbara's artistic journey was launched more so from stubborn determination as a teenager rather than any identified giftedness.

Her grandmother was an accomplished oil painter, and although she didn't directly encourage Barbara to follow in her footsteps, Barbara's childhood was surrounded by her beautiful paintings. Not realizing that a career in fine art could be a possibility, she steered her initial career choice toward another art-related field. Finally, in 2002, she was able to turn her focus to a fine art career, and continues to pursue it full steam ahead.

Born and raised in New Jersey, Barbara also lived in Atlanta, Georgia for many years until she yearned for snow and mountains for her landscape subject matter, which prompted her family's move to Bend, Oregon in 2015. Barbara teaches frequent workshops in oil and pastel, and offers videos and online instruction. Visit her website at www.barbarajaenicke.com.
